Counselor Updates

In Process:

All Students Grades 9-12

BHHS Continuous Learning Plan is set to begin Monday, April 13, 2020. On Monday, please use an internet-enabled device to navigate to www.bloomfield.org/learn. This page will serve as the hub for all teaching and learning online for all grade levels for the remainder of this school year.

Students and Parents of the Class of 2020

With so many uncertainties still to be addressed, we wanted to make sure you were aware of the procedure to secure your final high school transcript being sent to the college of your choice. As we enter the last couple of months of school and you receive your results from the colleges that you have applied to, please make sure you update this information in your Naviance online accounts. You will need a result for every application listed in Naviance. Also, indicate your final college choice by selecting the appropriate college located at the bottom of your "Colleges I'm Applying To" page, under the heading of "College I'm Attending"---this will allow your final official high school transcript to be automatically sent to the college you will be attending. This is a required step by the colleges and BHHS.

If you have any colleges listed that you did not apply to on your list, let your counselor know and we can remove the college from your list.

2020-2021 Course Selection Cards Were Due March 9, 2020.

All students in grades 9-11 should have inputted their course selections for the 20-21 school year into student connect/Mi-star and submitted their course selection cards to the counseling office by March 9. If you were absent or did not complete this task before school closed on March 13, please contact your counselor ASAP and input your classes on student connect today. This scheduling process is crucial to ensure we have the greatest availability of course offerings next year.

BHHS Counseling Google Classroom for 9th-12th Grade Students

All students in grades 9-12 should receive an invitation to join a Google Classroom from the BHHS Counseling Department. Parents, please encourage your student to join this Google Classroom so they can keep updated on important information and support from their BHHS counseling team.

Social Emotional Learning a part of the Continuous Learning 2.0 High School Plan:

Please take time to review these SEL activities to support students and families, especially during these unprecedented times. On the High School Continuous Learning page there is a button labeled Social Emotional Learning. New SEL activities will appear each week.

Upcoming:

CANCELLED: Bowling Green State University Campus Visit

Due to the recent school closings, BGSU has cancelled any campus visits for this school year. The BHHS Counseling Department will reschedule a visit for the 2020-2021 school year. More details to come.

Juniors

Class of 2021 students and families, please mark your calendars for Junior College Night 101 presented virtually by our BHHS Counseling Department. We plan to keep the presentation date on May 18, 2020. This informative presentation will be led by the BHHS Counseling Department and we hope ALL juniors and their parents/guardians will view this presentation in preparation for the college application process.

Student Recognitions

Statement from BHHS Administration:

We are actively working to come up with various alternatives/options to honor and recognize our students, especially our seniors, for their accomplishments. This includes various options for graduation, prom, Senior Honors Night, athletics/co-curriculars, and scholarships. Many options are contingent upon Michigan regulations/guidelines regarding the Coronavirus, including social distancing, and if large group events can be held. We are committed to honoring these events in the appropriate format given by the State of Michigan and related Coronavirus guidelines.

Senior Honors Night

Senior Honors Night was initially scheduled for May 19, 2020, at BHHS. The BHHS Counseling Department is working to make this a virtual event to highlight the accomplishments of these honorees. Once a final decision is made regarding SHN, we will inform students/families.

Internet Safety

A GUIDE FOR TEACHERS AND PARENTS

Provided by Michigan Secretary of State Jocelyn Benson

ProtectMiChild Are your children safe while online? Michigan families, especially minors, are becoming inundated with advertisements from alcohol, tobacco, pornography, illegal drug and gambling marketers through different internet and cell phone inboxes. Texting their advertisements is the newest marketing effort that many of these companies are using. Thankfully, the Michigan Secretary of State's office offers a free program to stop adult advertisements from reaching your email address and cell number via text. The Michigan Child Protection Registry is a free do-not-contact service for Michigan's families. As a strong supporter of this Registry, I would like to encourage you to sign your entire family up for this program and inform your friends and colleagues about how they can protect their children and families from unwanted adult advertising. To sign up only takes seconds. Just go to www.ProtectMiChild.com and keep your family safe.

The College Board National Recognition Programs

Starting in fall 2019, if you take the PSAT/NMSQT and you're African American, Hispanic American or Latinx, Indigenous, attend school in a rural area, or are from a small town, you may be invited to apply for academic recognition as part of the College Board National Recognition Programs*.

Benefits

The College Board National Recognition Programs are academic honors that can be included on college applications. They're not scholarships, but colleges use them to identify academically exceptional students.

We are working with four of our College Board strategic partners to distribute the honors. These partners are:

- African American Recognition—Jackie Robinson Foundation
- Hispanic Recognition—Hispanic Scholarship Fund
- Indigenous Recognition—Indigenous Education, Inc.
- Rural and Small Town Recognition—Jack Kent Cooke Foundation

Learn more about our partners and the scholarships they offer.

Who is Invited to Apply

The College Board reaches out to students who:

- Take the PSAT/NMSQT in October of their junior year.
- Identify as African American, Hispanic or Latinx, or Indigenous.
- Attend school in a rural area or are from a small town. Location is based on information from the National Center for Education Statistics.
- Achieve the minimum requested PSAT/NMSQT scores (qualifying level may vary by state each year).
- Earn a cumulative GPA of 3.5 or higher by the middle of their junior year.

Good to Know

- You need to identify as African American, Hispanic American or Latinx, or Native American, Alaska Native, or Native Hawaiian on the PSAT/NMSQT answer sheet where it asks for race and ethnicity.
- Official high school transcripts will confirm student's eligibility for the recognition programs.
- The African American Recognition Program considers students who identify as Black or African American (including African and Afro-Caribbean origin) and are from the United States, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, the Mariana Islands, the Marshall Islands, or attend school abroad.
- The Hispanic Recognition Program considers students who identify as Hispanic or Latinx and are from the United States, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, the Mariana Islands, the Marshall Islands, and/or attend school abroad.
- For the Indigenous Recognition Program, students who identify as Alaska Native, Native American, or Native Hawaiian must provide their federal or state tribal affiliation. See recognition program verification for more details.
- For the Rural and Small Town Recognition Program, students will be determined based on information from the National Center for Education Statistics and will receive an invitation to apply.
- Only junior-year PSAT/NMSQT scores count. SAT and PSAT 10 scores cannot be used.
- Opting in to Student Search allows prospective colleges and scholarships to find you.

Self-Nomination Instructions

If you took the PSAT/NMSQT but didn't let us know that you identified as African American, Hispanic American or Latinx, or Indigenous, or if you moved and now live in a rural area or small town, you can still be considered. Email the College Board National Recognition Programs for self-nomination instructions.

5 Scholarship Tips For High School Seniors

Jan 8, 2020 by Matthew Schwartz Reprinted from Road2College, click here for complete article.

When our children are growing up, we read fairy tales to engage them in a story that can teach them about the real world.

That's great when they are young, but by the time they are in high school and applying to college, we need to be honest with ourselves and them about reality.

Applying to private scholarships and winning enough to pay for college is one of those fairy stories you shouldn't pass on to your kids.

What are Some Facts About Scholarships?

Become familiar with our tips on scholarships for high school seniors.

According to prepscholar.com, " Fewer than 20,000 students per year will earn a private full-ride scholarship award." (This refers to full-time college students enrolled at four-year colleges.)

The money to cover the free ride comes from a combination of money from colleges themselves, federal and state grants, and private scholarships. To be even more realistic, there are less than 250 private scholarships that even provide enough money to cover all college costs.

So, the likelihood of winning a full ride scholarship or even piecing enough scholarships together to cover your college costs is pretty slim. Before your student starts looking for private scholarships, understand the following five realities and share them with your student too...

Is it Worth Applying to Private Scholarships?

1) The largest scholarship a high school senior will receive will come from the college they attend.

According to the latest data from the College Board's Trends in Higher Education, 25% of all free aid money (money that does not need to be paid back) was given by colleges to students.

Scholarship money from colleges is second in dollar amount to what the government gives out in loan money.

Only 6% of free aid money came from private and employer grants.²

If your student is going to be efficient with their time, it's more worthwhile to find colleges that are going to offer the most money in either financial aid or merit scholarships, as opposed to searching and applying to private scholarships.

2) Private scholarships reduce financial aid students receive from colleges.

If your student wins a private scholarship, they must report that information to the financial aid office.

Many colleges practice something called "Scholarship Displacement", that is, they use the scholarship money to reduce the amount of need-based aid they offer.

Some colleges choose to reduce the college's grant or others may reduce loans included in the financial aid package.

Reducing the loan amount is better for the student, but in either case, winning a private scholarship doesn't give you more money than what you would have received from the college and government anyway.

Frustrating – right?!!

3) Private scholarships last for one year, merit scholarships are for four years.

Private scholarships are usually for just one year.

If your student is depending on private scholarships, they'll have to apply to scholarships every year to continue to find scholarship money for each year of college.

On the other hand, merit scholarships are usually offered for all four years of college, assuming students continue to meet the requirements (like GPA minimums and no academic or legal violations).

Which would your student rather do – research and apply each year for new private scholarships or do the upfront research to find a college that will offer need aid or merit scholarships for all four years?

4) Don't count on private scholarships to get your child through college debt-free.

It's possible to earn scholarship money to help with college costs, but know that the average student will only win $1,000-5,000.

Here's advice from Kevin Ladd, VP at Scholarships.com: "I say if you're really good you might win one out of every six scholarships you apply for. If you're average you might get one out of ten.

If your circumstance is unusual you might get a higher ratio, but typically if you want to win ten scholarships to pay for 90% of your need, you're going to have to apply to five to ten times that many to win them."

Let's do the math – If you want to earn $10,000 from private scholarships, you'll probably have to apply to 100 scholarships in the hope of earning 10 scholarships, for $1000 each.

How much time do you think that will take?

5) Is that a private scholarship or a sweepstakes your student is entering?

Over the years, more and more scholarships look like sweepstakes, rather than scholarships awarded based on defined criteria.

If no specific information is required to apply for a scholarship, especially "no essay" scholarships, then what criteria is being used to pick winners?

These scholarships are really just lotteries used by companies to collect student information. When you see the words "no essay," think advertising and lead generation.

So, if your student plans on entering these types of scholarships, make sure to at least create a new email address to use, so they don't get overwhelmed with marketing emails.

Even if you believe and agree with these five issues about pursuing private scholarships, it doesn't mean students shouldn't give it a try to find and apply to scholarships.

There are some very good local and niche private scholarships that will help fill some of the tuition gap.

And if your student is motivated, and has the time, go for it! Just be realistic about the effort needed and the potential outcome.

And remember, if you really want to make a dent finding money for college, the best time spent will be used towards targeting schools that are more likely to offer financial aid or merit scholarships.

Check out our essential guide for researching colleges and developing a list of affordable schools.

Save time, energy, and money using our College Data Spreadsheet. With data on over 1500 four year colleges in one place you can filter, sort, and compare schools to find those that are most likely to offer your student either merit scholarships or need-based aid.
